SCOTT & MARY LEVIN
— CHIEF PEACEKEEPERS™ —

A Better Way Forward

What happens next after your divorce mediation consultation

Legal guidance. Financial clarity. Thoughtful negotiation.

Scott & Mary Levin
Chief Peacekeepers™

Divorce does not have to become a battle.

My role is to help both of you understand the legal and financial landscape, identify the decisions that need to be made, and work through those decisions together toward a knowledgeable, workable settlement.

Why my approach is different

As a family law attorney, mediator, and Certified Divorce Financial Analyst®, I bring the legal and financial pieces together in one structured process. The goal is not simply to "get you divorced." It is to help you understand what you have, what the law provides, what your options are, and the consequences of the choices you are considering - so you can make informed decisions with confidence.

LEGAL CLARITY	FINANCIAL CLARITY	THOUGHTFUL NEGOTIATION
Understand the legal framework, rights, obligations, and issues that need resolution.	Organize the finances, evaluate property and support options, and understand tradeoffs.	Explore practical options and build agreements that both of you understand and can live with.

"Clarity first. Then negotiation."

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

A clear path from questions to resolution

1	Get Organized We identify the issues that need to be resolved and gather the information needed to make good decisions, including required financial disclosures.
2	Understand the Landscape I help you understand the legal framework, financial picture, and the choices available to you. When appropriate, we can identify outside specialists who may be useful.
3	Work Through the Decisions We meet in mediation to address the issues one at a time. You do not need to agree before mediation begins - you only need to be willing to work through the questions together.
4	Build the Agreement As agreements are reached, I organize the terms into a comprehensive Marital Settlement Agreement designed to clearly reflect the decisions you have made.
5	Complete the Divorce For an uncontested matter, my office prepares and handles the necessary court paperwork so the process moves from agreement through judgment as efficiently as possible.

You stay in control.

Mediation is designed to give both spouses the information, structure, and space needed to make their own decisions rather than handing those decisions to a judge.

WHAT I HANDLE FOR YOU

One process. The important pieces brought together.

Depending on your case, the mediation process can include:

✓ Identifying and organizing assets, debts, income, and other financial information	✓ Distinguishing community and separate property issues
✓ Evaluating options for real estate, retirement accounts, investments, businesses, and other assets	✓ Addressing spousal support and child support when applicable
✓ Developing parenting and co-parenting arrangements when applicable	✓ Reviewing the required financial disclosures and helping both of you understand the financial picture
✓ Exploring settlement options and the practical and financial consequences of different choices	✓ Drafting the Marital Settlement Agreement once agreements are reached
✓ Preparing and handling the uncontested court paperwork needed to complete the case

What I want you to have at the end

A settlement you understand - not paperwork you felt pressured to sign. You should know why the agreement works, what it means financially, and how it moves you forward.

Ready to move forward?

If you both feel comfortable proceeding, simply reply to my follow-up email and we can begin. My office will guide you through the next steps from start to finish.

SCOTT F. LEVIN, ESQ., CDFA® | CHIEF PEACEKEEPER™

San Diego Divorce Mediation & Family Law
9820 Willow Creek Road, Suite 410, San Diego, CA 92131 • 858-293-1410 • SanDiegoFamilyLawyer.net